New York City is saved; the pie famine is being averted.

Who did discover the north pole—Pittsburg or Detroit?

Naturally enough, the state wonders what happened to Jones—of Rutland.

No bargain-counter prices for illegal liquor selling in Rutland—$500 per sale.

Dartmouth's inauguration was characterized by the aristocracy of brains rather than the aristocracy of wealth.

It reads familiarly that a missing Antinom, N. H. man was "last seen" in Brattleboro. Now let Brattleboro trace the connection.

Elroy Keit considers he was among bad associates when he was in the house of correction. Pretty good for a man convicted of murder!

According to Dr. Cook, Edward Barrell's charge that Cook did not reach the summit of Mount McKinley amounts to a dun for unpaid services. The latter, if so, is not exactly a credit to the north pole explorer.

If the advice of the Rutland Herald is followed literally, there will be lots of human male "sarcasms" in that vicinity, for the contemporary, in drawing conclusions on the latest crime in Wallingford, urges "lone women in sequestered cottages" to arm themselves and shoot to kill on the moment a male person crosses their threshold. Supposing, neighbor, it should be a mild, but persistent hook seller that was punctured by a lead missile; what then? Would the law allow exonerate a woman when she shoots a man, because he is a man and he steps over her threshold against her wish? Perhaps The Herald did not mean its advice to be taken literally and without proper discrimination between men.

TO MAKE "MOUNT VERNON" OPEN.

Those who have visited George Washington's home at Mount Vernon, Va., have been surprised when they were asked to pay toll in order to get into the grounds, they having supposed that the inspection of the ancient house was free to visitors. It is explained that the charge is made in order to keep up the buildings and premises; and the average visitor does not balk at the moderate price asked. But it seems that so sacred a place as Mount Vernon should be above the taint of commercialism, and the public should be permitted to come and go there, unhampered except by a demand for decent conduct on their part (we refer particularly to the miserable habit of souvenir hunting to which Americans are so given at the present time). If the growing public sentiment of Virginia, which has a local interest, and of the country at large, which has a deep general interest, shall be of any avail, Congress will appropriate enough money for keeping up the premises and thus relieve the Ladies' Mount Vernon association from the burden.

This association, which alone was responsible for the purchase of the Mount Vernon estate at a time when it was on the market for indiscriminate sale, is to be thanked with all the fervor which a patriotic country can muster for keeping the place as near like its condition in Washington's day as possible. It is likely that had it not been for the women of this association, the estate would now be occupied by some private person or the traces of the Mount Vernon of old completely eradicated and replaced by a modern private residence. The site on the Virginia bank of the Potomac river is an entrancing one and would readily sell for a private house. Thanks to the Ladies' Mount Vernon association it is preserved largely as it was when the first president of the country lived there.

RESTRICTING DEER HUNTING IN VERMONT.

People who go into the Vermont woods during the open deer season which comes on the last week of the present month will find themselves confronted by more signs than usual, forbidding hunting of any kind on the premises. In the vicinity of Windsor county in particular the land owners have accepted the provisions of the Vermont statute which permits them to post their land provided the land is enclosed, whether it be cultivated or not, and also to post the land if it be cultivated and not enclosed. Therefore, any fenced land, even deep forests, can be posted according to the law, and trespassing on it is punishable with a forfeiture of ten dollars, together with whatever damages the owner may have sustained.

This prerogative of the owner is intended as much to protect human lives as it is to prevent the slaughter of deer. There is more or less danger to people who may be employed on the farms of the state from the stray bullets of hunters, and in such cases as that of the Billings estate at Woodstock it is admitted that people who go into the woods for ordinary employment take their lives in their hands during the annual six days' deer hunt. This estate is large and has a considerable forest area which is probably a good feeding ground for deer. The forest also contains many drives and walks which are used by many people who are fond of nature's embellishments at this time of the year, and the permission for hunters to pursue the deer there would perhaps mean a fatality or so to such frequenters of the estate. Not only the owners of the Billings estate, but a large number of sportsmen or farmers, have posted their land. So hunters need to be careful where they hunt.

MONTPELIER

Edward T. Seguin left this morning in an automobile with a party of friends to take in the Dartmouth-Williams game at Hanover.

Potatoes in the local market are bringing about 40 cents a bushel to wholesale dealers. The crop in this section has been very good.

Arthur Booth, who was injured on the city hall job some time ago, was removed from Heston hospital to his home in Moretown Thursday.

"Union Depot," a play, was presented by the high school students to a full house last night. The farce went off smoothly and the students showed the effect of hard drilling.

Rev. A. J. Hough of Trinity will officiate at the marriage of his son, Arthur Hough, of that place, to Miss Edson of West Lebanon.

After a golf match this afternoon between two teams picked by the tournament committee of the Country club a duck supper will be served at the club house this evening. The losers will pay for the supper.

The Newark system of charging books has been installed in the Kellogg-Hubbard library. This system is said to be one of the simplest in use and will get rid of much delay caused in the use of the old system.

Chief of Police and Mrs. John S. Durkee arrived last night from their wedding trip to Boston and will reside on Court street with Mrs. Durkee's mother. Officer P. J. Conolly has been the officer in charge in the chief's absence.

The fire alarm system is to be thoroughly overhauled and put in first class shape as soon as the work can be started. Many of the wires in various parts of the town are placed so that they cross other wires and a number of the fire alarm boxes will not ring in an alarm.

An enlarged portrait of Rev. Lucius Reed, former pastor of the Bethany church, was hung in the Bethany church yesterday afternoon. The picture was the work of Katherine Bingham of St. Johnsbury and is a gift of James W. Brock of this city.

William Jackson of Waterbury had a narrow escape from serious injury Thursday afternoon as he was waiting for the afternoon train at the Junction. The motion of the train drew him along for several feet and then he fell to the platform, with several bruises as his only injuries.

ENGAGES A LAWYER.

Robert Eddy, suspect in Wallingford Death Mystery.

Rutland, Oct. 16.—Robert Eddy, the young man serving time at the house of correction for illegal liquor selling, who is suspected of being guilty of the murder of Miss Mary Jane Johnson of Wallingford, found dead at her home last Sunday, has engaged W. H. Botford of this city as counsel. Eddy denies all connection with the affair.

No formal charge has yet been made against Eddy and it has not been proven conclusively, so far as known, that the woman was murdered but most of the officers are satisfied that she did not die from natural causes.
